Alva Zella Matheson and LaKay's papers from LaKay M. Weber's Home would not have lost me.

I pray that he'll understand.

At any rate I'm sure I'm right.

More certain than I have ever been of anything else.

Charles has asked me to marry him. I guess you knew that it was coming. I didn't give him an answer immediately.

I asked him to wait and let me think it over and be perfectly certain first. I pretty sure what the answer will be.

He's not perfect. No more than I am. We think together in many things, but quite often our ideas or ideals clash.

In ideas he often wins out. He thinks things out well before he says anything in the first place. When it's a matter of ideas, he usually concedes the point to me. Partly because
